e can’t stop here, this is beach living country!”, I muttered to myself as I pulled into the grounds of the Cochran estate, the site of this year’s ultra-exclusive and ultra-anticipated Capechella festival.

Returning after a covid-induced hiatus last year, Capechella is an eclectic combination of some of the biggest acts in music today, including AVTAMAT, Doc Huth & The Uncouth Youth, and rising sensation JAN AKA (read our exclusive interview, opposite page).

Watching attendees swarming around me, it was hard not to feel the excitement in the air. Friends, food, fun, fmusic - this fest has them all.

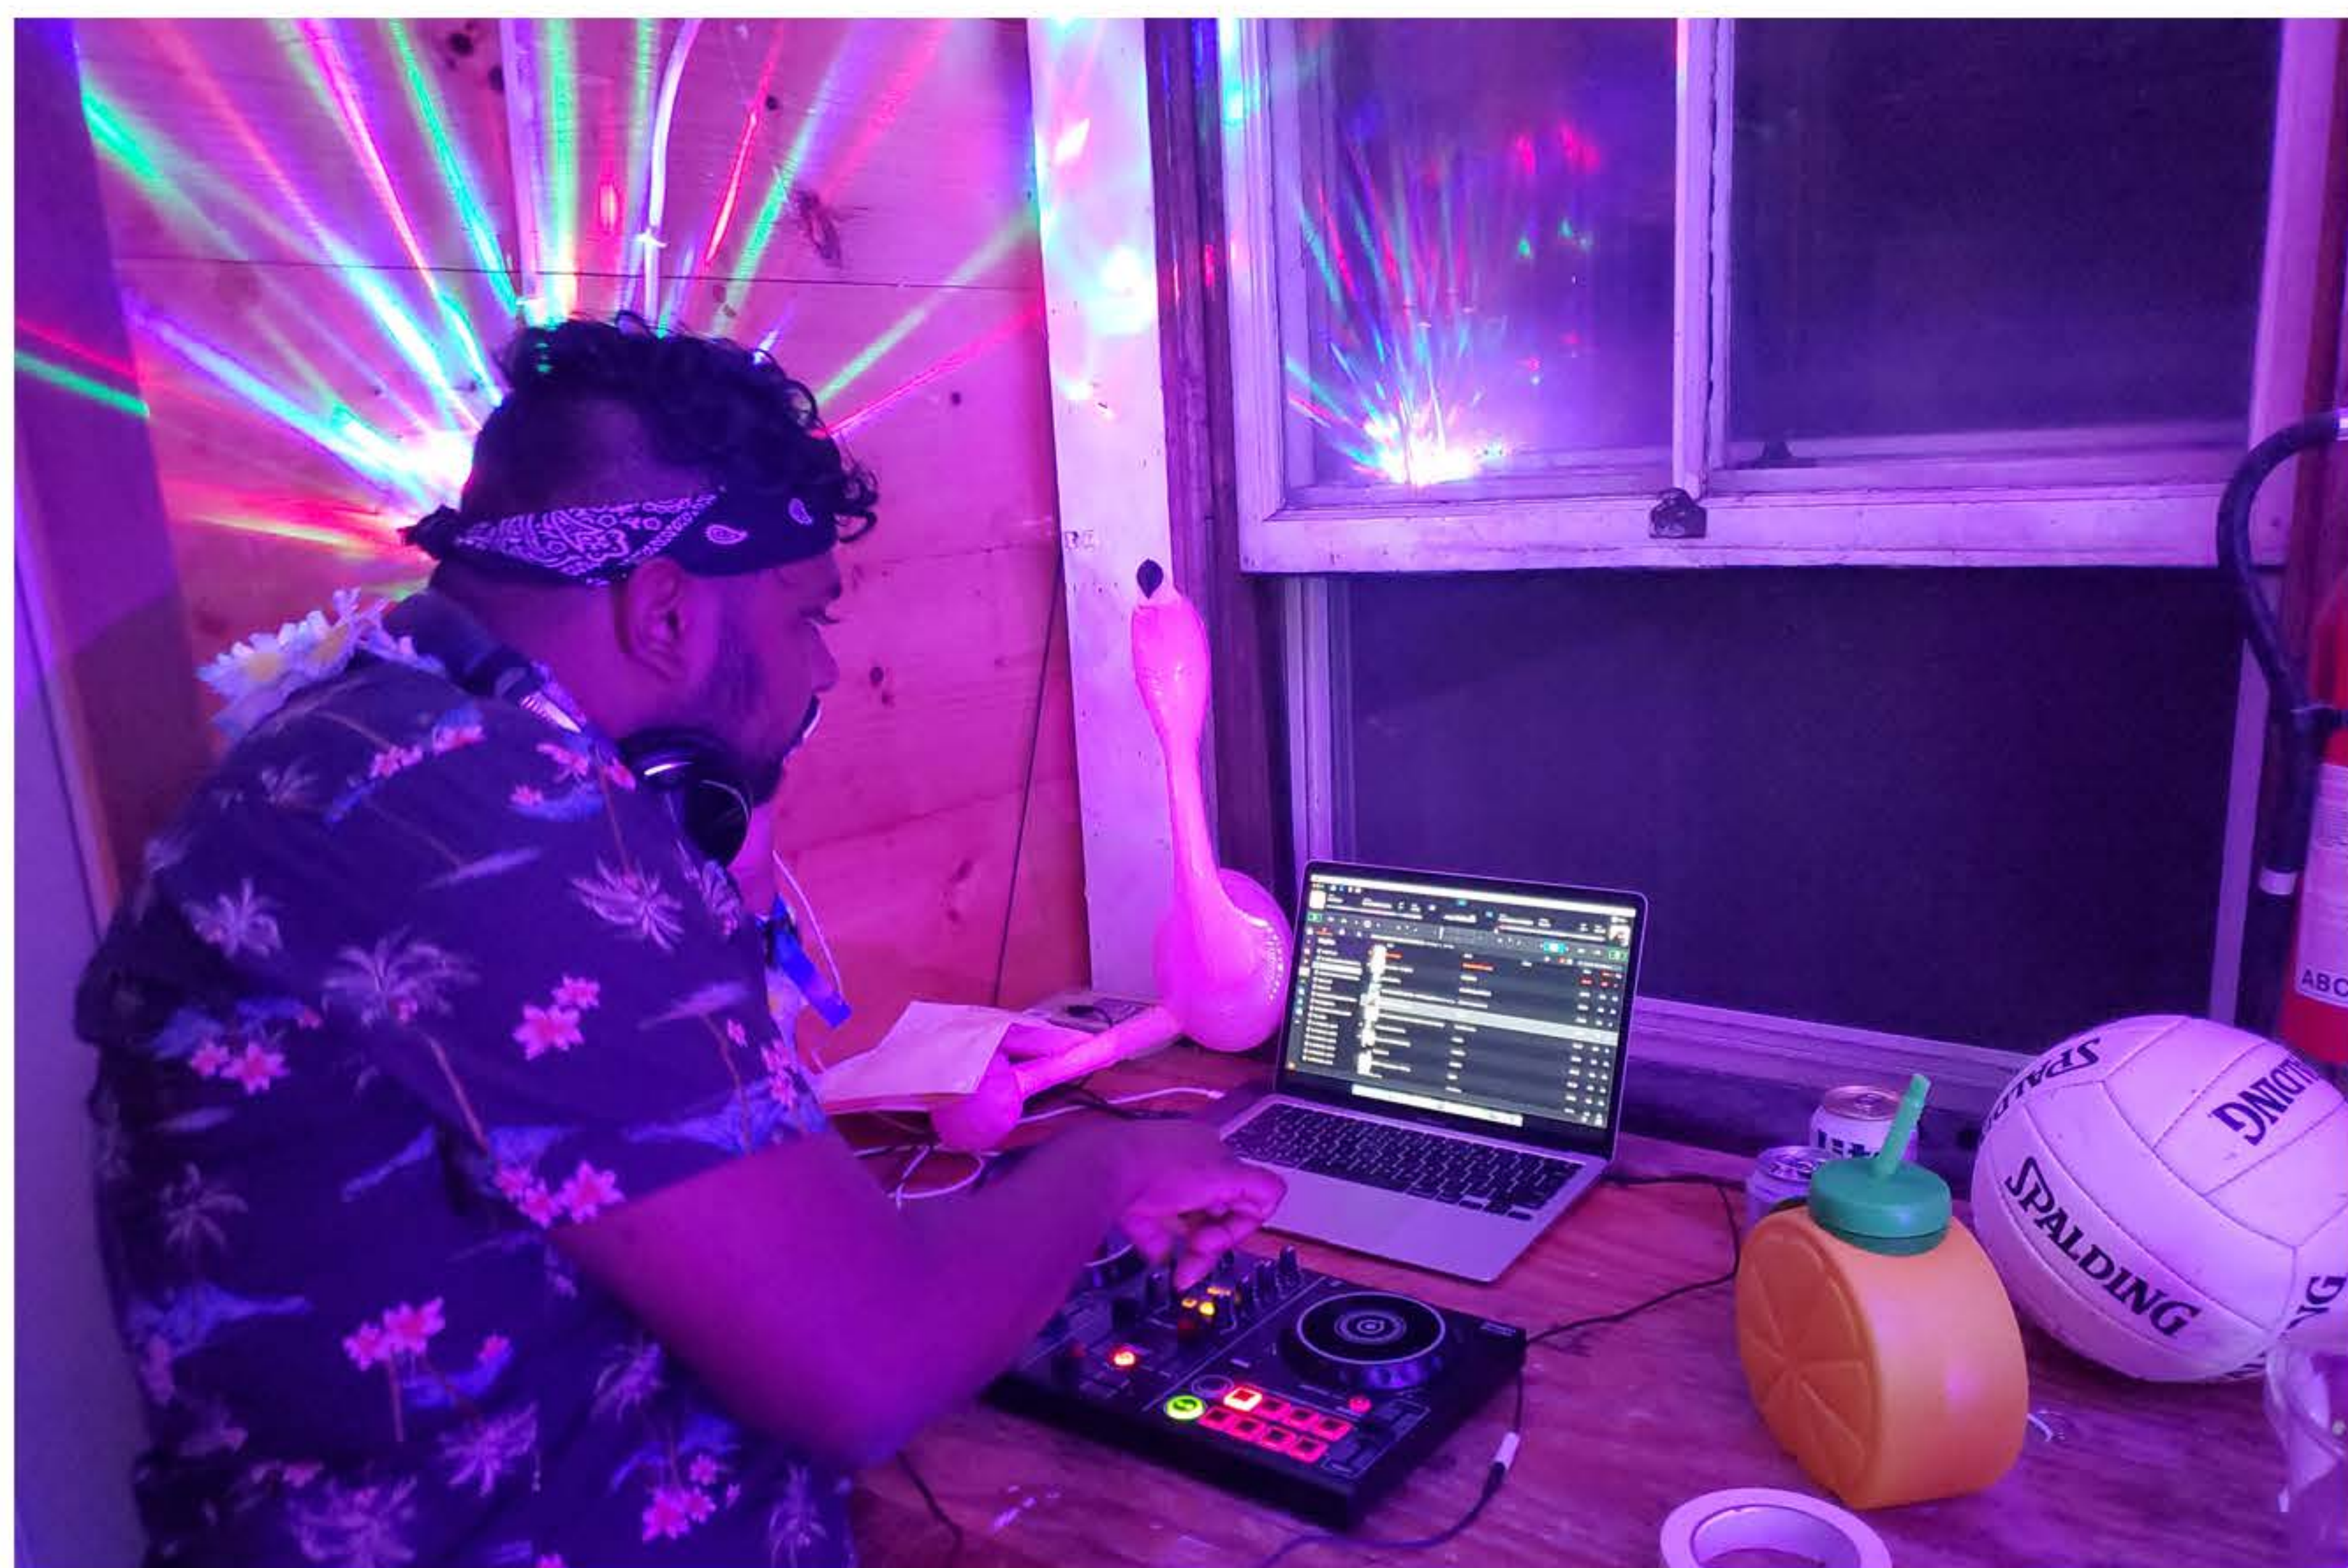

As day turned to night and the music began in earnest, we were treated to the performance of a lifetime. (Check out our photo essay on the following pages.)

Set after set blew us away. Every note was pitch perfect; every song a hit. Even the catering was delicious. You could tell the tunes were stirring up strong emotions in the crowd: I saw several friends embrace and affirm their love for each other.

It's easy to get jaded in this line of work, but trust this old minstrel: Capechella "rocked"! ■

Setting the record straight with JAN AKA

Beach Living Magazine was able to chat with the EDM legend right before his big set on Saturday.

Beach Living Magazine: This might be the biggest show of your career. How are you feeling?

JAN AKA: Hey, sorry, I'm still setting up over here.

Wow!

But what about the beaches?

The Cochran estate overlooks Pleasant Bay and faces nearby Sipson Island. With easily access to swimming, sailing, or just lounging, the beach living doesn't get much better than this!

Exclusive Event Photos

At Corona Beers, we believe in hot summers, cold drinks, and good times.

But most of all, we believe in accountability. And that's why we want to say...

We're sorry.

When it leaked from our BSL-4 rated brewery, we never could have imagined that the novel coronavirus, or COVID-19, would kill millions around the world and devastate our communities.

We goofed. And we're going to make it right.

We recently announced a donation of $1,000 to coronavirus-related charities. And now we're offering affected customers discounted prices on our latest variety, Corona Delta.

So the next time you're choosing refreshments, just remember: Here's To You.™
